

Question 1:

Answer: Yes, I have around six months of experience in Python. I am very much familiar with basic concepts like variable creation

Feedback: The candidate demonstrates a basic understanding of Python concepts, such as variable creation, function usage, and

Confidence Score: 55

Strengths: Basic understanding of Python syntax and concepts., Ability to create and use functions effectively.

Areas for Improvement: Expand knowledge to include intermediate and advanced Python concepts such as object-oriented programming.

Plagiarism Suspected: No

---

Question 2:

Answer: Positional and keyword arguments are used in Python function. Positional means I think it will take the storage reference

Feedback: The candidate's explanation of positional and keyword arguments lacks clarity and technical accuracy. While they recognize

Confidence Score: 45

Strengths: Acknowledges the existence of positional and keyword arguments in Python., Shows an attempt to differentiate between

Areas for Improvement: Clarify the definition of positional arguments as values passed to a function in the order they are defined.,

Plagiarism Suspected: No

---

Question 3:

Answer: Sorry, I don't know.

Feedback: The candidate's honest response is appreciated, but it indicates a lack of knowledge or preparation on the topic. Demonstrate

Confidence Score: 20

Strengths: Honesty in admitting lack of knowledge, No attempt to mislead or provide incorrect information

Areas for Improvement: Enhance Python knowledge and preparation for technical interviews, Develop strategies to approach unknown

Plagiarism Suspected: No

---

Overall Score: 40.00 / 100

Recommendation: Not recommended based on current evaluation.