

Question 1: Can you explain your experience with Python?

Answer: I have six months of experience.

Feedback: The candidate has limited experience with Python, which may indicate a basic understanding of the language. While s

Confidence Score: 50

Strengths: Basic familiarity with Python syntax and concepts, Potential exposure to real-world applications during six months

Areas for Improvement: Expand Python experience through more complex projects or tasks, Deepen understanding of advanced

Plagiarism Suspected: No

-----

Question 2: Can you describe a Python project you worked on during those six months and the specific challenges you faced?

Answer: Management system creation in using the Python. I used only static data database. I mean list creation and storing the d

Feedback: The candidate demonstrates basic familiarity with Python and data structures like lists for storing information. However

Confidence Score: 60

Strengths: Basic understanding of Python lists for data storage., Awareness of data volatility in memory-based storage.

Areas for Improvement: Improve clarity and technical terminology in explanations., Expand knowledge to include persistent data s

Plagiarism Suspected: No

-----

Question 3: How would you modify your management system to handle persistent data storage instead of volatile data?

Answer: OK, we to handle the system, I mean to handle to modify the system instead of using volatile data, we can create a back

Feedback: The candidate demonstrates an understanding of the importance of data persistence and suggests using a backend sy

Confidence Score: 65

Strengths: Recognizes the need for data persistence., Mentions the use of databases for backend systems.

Areas for Improvement: Provide specific Python tools or libraries (e.g., SQLite, SQLAlchemy) for database integration., Improve c

Plagiarism Suspected: No

-----

Overall Score: 58.33 / 100

Recommendation: Not recommended based on current evaluation.